Vetiver

A strong, resolute heart with the vibrant scent of energy

Its simple appearance belies its virtues, and yet Vetiver reveals its strong, decisive character even at first encounter.

This evergreen herbaceous plant is native to India and cultivated in many tropical regions of the world.

It grows in tall tufts and apparently has thin, light roots, but in fact is surprisingly sturdy and firmly anchored to the ground.

It is the roots that give off the characteristic fresh, woody fragrance, greatly valued in ancient times for its capacity to refresh one in the summer heat and produce calming effects.

Indeed, the Indians used to weave Vetiver into mats and curtains for their homes, and by spraying them with water they were able to keep out the heat and discourage insects.

Vetiver is also known as the “oil of tranquility”, because its essence helps to instill calm and promote psychophysical well-being; it is also renowned for its protective effects and soothing, toning action.

In the twentieth century, Vetiver entered the world of fragrances, with its deep, rich tones making it into an essential raw ingredient and a symbol of men's perfumery. In recent times it has also become an increasingly popular component in women's perfumes, giving them a certain body and an underlying warmth.

And if it is true that smell is the most spiritual of our senses, then Vetiver, with its decisive, lively character, is the real embodiment of spiritual and emotional strength.

This is why we at L'Erbolario chose it as the main ingredient for our new cosmetic line.

First, we worked on the roots to obtain an extract with cleansing and toning properties; then, we subjected the residue to a special process of steam distillation, to create a fragrant toning water.

With these special ingredients, this Vetiver line is the perfect way to reflect someone with a strong, decisive personality under a seemingly calm and reflective exterior.

PERFUME

Beneath the lively, woody notes of this fragrance lies the real power of Vetiver, a hardy plant with vigorous roots.

Its unique scent is intermixed with tangy notes of citrus fruit and Ginger and the deep, warm tones of Musk.

Wearers of this perfume will radiate a simple beauty, also full of charm and personality.
